

Fawzi Boudjema is interviewed in a special issue of the magazine La Recherche dated July/August 2012. The special issue is entitled the Physics of the 21st Century. The contribution of our colleague covered supersymmetry and the Higgs in particular in the context of the LHC. This was a well timed interview since the publication of the magazine coincided with the CERN announcement that a new particle, most probably the missing Higgs, has been discovered.